PROPOSAL	Fell a fir tree. The attached sketch plan indicates the tree to be felled - number 1. The tree is not covered by a TPO. Reasons for felling... The tree is not healthy - it is leaning over and foliage is only growing on one side of the tree (this can be seen in the attached pictures). According to a tree surgeon that we have consulted, this is because the tree struggles for light given the large chestnut trees behind it. These chestnut trees are in a neighbouring garden and no works are proposed on them. Felling of the tree will allow better visibility of the horse chestnut trees behind it. The tree is shading part of the lawn and the flower bed, thus preventing growth. According to a tree surgeon that we have consulted, the tree will only get larger over time and lean over further making the above problems worse. At some point, the tree could become dangerous. The tree will be replaced with bushes.
